COUNTY ATTORNEY

J. D. Tuggle Says April Will be the Proper Time to Take up the Question of the New Court House.

In conversation with Hon. J. D. Tuggle a few days ago a reporter for the Advocate propounded to him the question:

Mr. Tuggle, when do you think the best time to bring up the question of taking a vote on the proposition to issue bonds for the purpose of erecting a new Court-house?

His answer was: "I think that the April term of the Fiscal Court would be a good time."

Do you think there would be any trouble in getting the Fiscal Court to order an election for the sale of the bonds?

"No, I think not. If that was the only trouble we would soon have a new Court-house."

Do you favor a new Court-house, and would you be one who would endeavor to carry the question in favor of issuing the bonds?

"Yes, by all means. I am heartily in favor of a new Court-house, and every other man in Knox county should be, but how they will vote is a different proposition."

Do you think the members of the bar would all favor the bonds?

"I should think so. Those of us who have to practice in this old Court-house know the necessity of a new building where we will have some room and conveniences, and where we can do justice to our clients and to ourselves. In this connection I suppose you had heard that 'Squire' Beatty is about to die from pneumonia contracted here during the last term of court?"

No; we had not heard of it.

"Yes, he was one of the jurors and served during court, and being compelled to go out of the warm room into a cold one to make verdicts, he contracted a deep cold, and I learn that they expected him to die, but last reports were to the effect that he is improving and may possibly recover."

That ought to be a lesson, don't you think?

"Yes, and the wonder to me is that there have not been more deaths result from such exposures."

"Keep up your fight for the Court-house; I believe you will get succeed in getting it if you continue to knock."

"Keep your hammer knocking." Good day.

This conversation shows that our County Attorney realizes the importance of a new Court house and he only speaks the sentiments of the great mass of good people who agree that we should have a decent Court house to take the place of the old one.

We propose to keep our little hammer knocking until we get the new Court house, so the only remedy is to vote the bonds and stop our knocking in that way.

BEES

On the Farm, if Properly Cared For, are a Source of Profit and Pleasure.

One of the greatest charms in farm life is that an abundance of the very best food can be raised for home consumption, not only being a source of economy, but of luxury as well.

It is a well-known fact that honey is a most healthful food, and the wonder to us has always been that it has not been made a standard article on every farm as chickens or potatoes. It is a luxury that is always ready when company comes unexpectedly, or a favorite luncheon for the children.

A few swarms of bees well cared for and properly protected will make all the honey necessary for an ordinary family with some surplus in favorable seasons.

By sowing clover and buckwheat upon which they can work, loads of the sweet will be gathered into the stand in a short time and can be counted as just that much clear gain, minus the small amount of work necessary to cut it.

We believe that the main reason that bees are not more extensively kept is fear of their stinging; yet bees are not vicious and will sting only in self-defense.

A veil and smoker is all that anyone needs to protect themselves while handling and working with bees, and it proper care is taken not to press or squeeze them they will rarely ever sting. The proper way is to always work quietly and never begin a fight with bees.

If by chance you should suppose an application of ammonia will soon relieve the pain, and if that is not at hand a slice of raw onion applied will soon remove it; but neither should be used while working with the bees, as the odor will tend to enrage the bees.

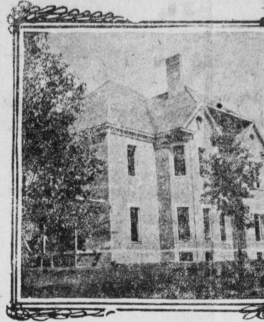

The standard honey crops are clover, buckwheat, but there are many other plants which go to swell the pasturage. Few realize how much they lose by not keeping bees. The fruit trees furnish honey which stirs them up for spring work, while the maple and the tulip trees add to the store of sweets. The cucumber patch offers a fine collection of pollen in its blossoms, and the weeds by the roadside and along the fence row, contribute their part. Thus it will be seen that a hundred pounds of the delicious sweet may be lost every year on the small farm simply by not having a few colonies of bees to harvest it.

Robbers! Raids!

Last Wednesday night about 10 o'clock while some of the boys were in the club room over Parker & Parker's store, they heard a burglar in the storeroom below, and at once spread the alarm and soon an armed mob had formed and proceeded to capture the would-be robber.

Two or three stood guard at the rear door with guns, pistols, clubs and other weapons of warfare, while Mr. Parker, who had been called by phone, unlocked the front door and, followed by a strong guard of brave young men armed to the teeth, made a bold charge.

Just as they entered the store the electric lights went out (as usual) and the rat got away.

FANNIE SPEED HALL.

New Girls' Dormitory at Union College, now rapidly nearing completion.

This new building adds much to the appearance of the College property and only needs a mate erected on the new lot recently purchased, to be used for a Boys' Dormitory, and Union College will be complete.

THE above Photos of Union College, Fannie Speed Hall and Bishop Warren and his Cabinet were taken last fall during the session of the annual Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this city.

At that Conference it was decided that the College here should be continued and that the necessary money to complete Speed Hall would be furnished by the Board of Education of Kentucky, from the funds in their hands.

There was a meeting of the School Committee in Lexington on December 14, at which time various features of their work was discussed, after which the meeting adjourned to meet again in Covington on January 16, at which time they will complete their report.

The Committee on Appropriations will meet at the same time and place to make appropriations for the College work for the years 1905 and 1906.

The regular semi-annual session of the Board of Education will meet at Union Church, Covington, on January 17, and hear all the reports from the various Committees in connection with the work of Education.

COLLEGE BUILDING, UNION COLLEGE.

The Shade trees in the foreground almost obscure the building from view but shows the lovely shaded campus grounds so much enjoyed during the bright summer days.

There will be some important changes recommended for Union College, among them the new Dormitory for boys, to be erected on the lot bought last fall adjacent to the College, and when this new Hall is built, Union College will be prepared to take care of her pupils in an entirely satisfactory manner, both to the College and the pupils.

In this connection we would suggested that if the people of Barbourville desire to show their appreciation of what the Board of Education of the Methodist Church has done, and proposes to continue to do for our town and our College, they should readily raise the sum of $501. by popular subscription, (this being the sum paid for the new lot purchased for the use of the College,) and donate it to the Board to show their hearty appreciation of what has been done for us. This would be an incentive to the Board to do more for us and would insure the immediate erection of the new Dormitory we so much need, to make the College complete.

Let some one start a subscription and see what can be done along that line.

FINE BUCK

Killed Near Town Last Tuesday Afternoon

Last Tuesday afternoon during the heavy snowstorm, while some parties were coming into town, they saw a large buck run across the road at Ballinger's hill and swim the river. The report was soon spread through town that a deer was sighted and a posse started on horseback in pursuit. It was tracked in the snow to Prichard's branch in Poplar precinct, when Will 'Red' Lickliter, came upon him and shot it with a shotgun, killing him.

He proved to be a fine buck with six spikes on his antlers, and attracted a great deal of comment.

Those who were in chase were Will 'Red' Lickliter, Wm. Tye, Joshua Faulkner, Mike Gardner and others.

The meat was divided among the pursuers and all enjoyed a fine feast of venison.

This is something very unusual for wild deer to be seen in this party of the county of late.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

Elect Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The stockholders of the First National Bank met last Tuesday and elected the following officers: John G. Matthews, president; F. R. Barner, vice president; Wm. Lock, cashier; George A. Lock, assistant cashier; S. T. Davidson, book-keeper.

All the old Board of Directors were re-elected, and R. W. Cole was added to the list. S. T. Davidson was elected book-keeper to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of C. T. Clelland, who goes to Danville to take a position.

Mr. Davidson is a man of experience and will no doubt prove a worthy man for the position.

K. P. A. Meeting.

The mid-winter meeting of the Kentucky Press Association was held in Louisville last Friday and Saturday, about fifty newspaper men being present. The sessions were held in the Council Chamber of the City Hall, and were of great interest. Saturday afternoon an elegant luncheon was spread at the Louisville Hotel, the editors being the guests of the Louisville Commercial Club.

The proposed outing to Florida and Cuba was abandoned on account of the small number desiring to go.

Fatal Accident.

Last Wednesday at the North Jellico mines, near Gray's, Mr. Hamp L. Smith was fatally injured by falling slate. He was employed as a machine operator, and while at work in one of the rooms the roof fell, breaking his back and rendering him unconscious, his body being paralyzed.

Prompt medical attention was given him, but there is no possible chance for his recovery.

A telephone message from Gray's at the hour of going to press states that his condition is unchanged. Mr. Smith is highly respected by all who know him, and the news of his injury was received with great regret here.

COLORADO AND KENTUCKY.

The conspiracy that seemed to have been formed to steal the Governorship of Colorado from the Hon. Alva Adams, who was duly elected in November, has broken down. Gov. J. H. Peabody, who made a fearless Governor, and who was on trial before the popular tribunal for approval of his strong course against the tyrannical labor unions of his State, was defeated. It makes no difference whether he should have been elected or defeated—the fact remains he was defeated at an election that gave the Republican national ticket an overwhelming majority. That was, on the face, proof that he was fairly defeated. It makes no great difference whether Republicans or Democrats govern Colorado, but it makes a great difference whether the honest result is ascertained and supported and the majority rules.

The action of the Republican Colorado Legislature in seating a Democrat as Governor in spite of the pressure to steal the office is creditable to the wisdom and honesty of that body. It leaves the State of Kentucky in a sort of gloomy and forbidding solitude, as the only State where a governorship has been stolen over the protest of an Election Board constituted by the thieves and in spite of a majority of the votes cast for the ousted candidate. In view of what has happened in Kentucky since 1900 we do not believe that such a crime will be repeated in the lifetime of any person now living. The cost of it in corrupt politics, in demoralization of official consciences in breaking down the honorable traditions that govern public men in their political acts, has been severe.

Slowly but surely Kentucky is emerging from the confusion of the crime that shocked everybody. The time is rapidly coming when voters will understand that the political tie that binds men to party is always one that should be broken this side of crime and this side of approving bad men for office. In proportion as elections are uncertain in Kentucky, the State will have better government and more prosperity. In proportion as voters can defeat unworthy candidates and hold parties responsible for mismanagement, parties will be more careful to put up good men for office and hold them to rigid accountability.

The corner stone of this, however, is free and fair elections and the triumph of the winner, even though his plurality be but a single vote. Colorado has given Kentucky a cold lesson in common honesty. The Republicans of Colorado could have stolen the governorship from a Democrat, but refused to do it. Democrats in Kentucky could steal the governorship from a Republican—and did it.

Honesty is the best policy, in politics as in business. Let every Kentuckian, proud of his State and hopeful of the future, determine to do what he can to give the maxim force in elections.—Louisville Herald.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To the Republicans of Kentucky:

Colonels, Office-seekers and Gentlemen.—You know that our State has a reputation, good or bad, depending entirely on the standpoint from which it is viewed. More is expected from us than any other people in the world, for good or bad, one or the other, or both. When we go away from home our personal paper-purse attracts more attention than any other people. Now I propose that we redeem the State. My plan is this: We are all going to the inauguration on March 4th—the Colonels, the Office-seekers and the Gentlemen. Let us all be Colonels for that day, and join in the parade, attired in black frock coat, black slouch hat, each Colonel carrying a big stick, cut from a Kentucky forest. "A Big Stick."

If this proposition meets with favor, we can arrange with the Kentucky Colonels, Office-seekers and Gentlemen, that are now in Washington, to secure Kentucky headquarters.

What say you?
Very truly,
R. H. PERRY.
Winchester, Ky.

False Alarm.

About seven o'clock Thursday morning the alarm of fire was sounded and it was soon learned that was only the chimney burning out at the residence of Col. W. R. Hughes. No damage whatever was done save a little fright to some who heard the alarm and could not locate the trouble.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

STORIES OF OLD DAYS.

You never heard the good old stories now—

The dear old-fashioned kind—These modern tales don't seem, somehow.

To satisfy the mind. I wish someone would tell a few Like those we loved of old; The ones we used to think were true—The stories mother told!

When I was just a little chap As soon as it was night I'd climb up into mother's lap And she would hold me tight And tell me of fairies, giants and Of warriors brave and bold. Never have tales seemed half so grand As those that mother told!

Tale after tale she'd tell—and then When she would say she'd done, I'd always make her start again And tell another one. Until at last, all tired out, My eyes would lose their hold On wakefulness—I'd dream about The tales that mother told!

Then, by and by, there'd come a knock. And she'd let father in, And as she pointed at the clock He'd give a sickly grin; His business kept him late, he swore, And he'd explain and scold, Till mother's tales looked pale before. The stories father told!

A MAN'S house should be on the hilltop of cheerfulness and serenity, so high that no shadows rest upon it, and where the morning comes so early, and the evening tarries so late, that the day has twice as many golden hours as those of other men. He is to be pitted whose house is in some valley of grief between the hills, with the longest night and the shortest day. Home should be in the center of joy, and orations of memory, singing to all our after life melodies and harmonies of old remembered joy.

TELL YOUR WIFE.

Oh, what a great mistake those business men make who never tell their business troubles to their wives. There comes some great loss to their store, or some of their companions in business play them a sad trick, and they carry the burden all alone. He is asked in the household again and again, "What is the matter?" but he believes it is a sort of Christian duty to keep all that trouble within his own soul. Oh, sir, your first duty was to tell your wife all about it. She, perhaps, might not have disentangled your finances or extended your credit, but she would have helped you to bear your misfortune. You have no right to carry on one shoulder that which is intended for two. There came a crisis in your affairs. You struggled bravely and long, but after a while there came a day when you said: "Here I shall have to stop," and you called in your partners, and you called in the most prominent men in your employ, and you said: "We have got to stop." You left the store suddenly. You could hardly make up your mind to pass through the street and over on the ferry-boat. You felt everybody would be looking at you, and blaming you, and denouncing you. You hastened home. You told your wife all about the affair. What did she say? Did she play the buttermilk? Did she talk about the silks, and the ribbons, and the fashions? No. She came up to the emergency. She snatched not under the stroke. She helped you to begin plan right away. She offered to go out of the comfortable house into a smaller one, and wear the old cloak another winter. She was one who understood your affairs without blaming you. You looked upon what you thought was a thin, weak woman's arm holding you up; but while you looked at that arm there came into the feeble muscles of it the strength of the eternal God. No chiding. No fretting. No telling you about the beautiful house of her father, from which you brought her, ten, twenty or thirty years ago. You said: "Well, this is the happiest day of my life. I am glad I have got from under my burden. My wife doesn't care, I don't care."

LEISURE CLASS IS NECESSARY.

"This nation has need of women of leisure, women who have time to be very busy about things that are without money and without price," declared a college president recently. No one has any wish to quarrel with the quickening interests which have come into women's lives, but it is certain that if all the women in the future are to be too busy to attend to things that are without money and without price, if they are to be hurried and hurried over the things of the world, the whole of life will have become incomparably the poorer.

"There are three ways in which women are pre-empted: They are the binders together of society, they are the beautifiers of life, and they are the preservers of morals," said President Hozard, of Wellesley, in one of her addresses.

As the beautifiers of life they are indeed most essential. Theirs the privilege and duty to make centers of sweetness and light where the things of this world cease from troubling and the weary one may rest. Theirs the primary and essential function of furnishing refreshment and inspiration for those who are wearied with the conflict of life.

But how are they to do this if every moment is devoted to some money-getting pursuit and they reach home with every nerve in a state of tension, every muscle aching with weariness and no desire but to creep away into a corner with their brains?

It may be taken as an axiom that few women engage in labor outside the home unless forced to do so by stress of circumstances, and there are few women who do not prefer the home life, with its duties and privileges. But apart from these there is a rapidly increasing circle of women who have become so absorbed in the various activities of "society," of club life, of athletics and the hundred and one "cults" that claim attention from time to time that the type of woman who greets you in her quiet drawing room as one who has "long days of repose behind her and looks serenely forward to others of the same tenor" is becoming so rare as to impress one as an exotic.

Leisure is not a luxury, it is simple, human need, as necessary to normal health as food and air and sleep. It is so gracious and civilizing a possession that no man should be willing to do without it, and he should command it, if possible, for his women folk, as one of the most precious possessions he can give them.

Too much hard physical work, whether undertaken from necessity or for pleasure (witness the athletic craze), is bad for women, it is asserted by more than one critic. The savage or peasant woman, who are often beautiful in youth, develop into unsightly coarseness after some years of unremitting toil.

Not that woman violate any obligation of womanliness or detract from its dignity by making themselves more capable, but it they are forced to labor to the verge of exhaustion they cannot fail of losing some of the gracious charm of freshness which is the fruit of a beautiful leisure, of years of abiding in green pastures and beside the still waters of life; of doing the things that are without money and without price. "And beauty born of murmuring sound shall pass into her face," wrote Emerson of his Lucy, and it is certain that one most first "absorb at the great natural reservoir and fountains of the beautiful in life and character and so be able to transmit beauty to all around."

THE AMERICAN REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The more Magazines there are, the more Indispensable is The Review of Reviews

"Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The world under a field-glass." "An education in public affairs and current literature."—these are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read the Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is the Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say the only way to keep up with it is to read the Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this reviewing section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any magazine.

Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," which public events and issues are so fortunately and lucidly explained in every issue. Every subscriber to "The Review of Reviews" is worth more than the price of the magazine. The unique cartoon department, depicting current history and literature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers five continents and yet is American, first and foremost. Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who make keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."

CORRESPONDENCE.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All correspondents who write for this paper are requested to report the news briefly and confine themselves to news. Puffs for merchants come under the head of paid locals, and would be inserted at the rate of 5 cents per line, otherwise we must pencil them.

Be careful not to write anything that will prove offensive to any one; a good joke is appreciated by all, but we want to make friends and not enemies of all with whom we come in contact.

Write on only one side of your paper and be sure to sign your own name to the manuscript—not for publication but for future reference and to show good faith—a failure to do this will hereafter necessarily consign your letters to the waste basket.

Please read these notes and bear them in mind, and write on one side of the paper only.

Respectfully,
THE EDITOR.

Several of our boys who have been serving as overseers of the roads on Stinking creek, have n before Judge Miller a few few days ago trying to explain why the roads are so bad, and somef them have felt the weight fo the law.

Drummers are getting thick in this neck of the woods.

The Hughes-Jellico Coal Co. is preparing to increase the output of the mine, and are erecting a large number of new dwellings for their men.

Col. John G. Matthews is rapidly pushing the work on his new mines and will soon be ready to ship coal. This will give employment to a large number of people.

On the 4th of this month Wm. Bargo, of this place, was taken to the Keely Institute at Crab Orchard, Ky. for the third or fourth time. Mr. Bargo has been imbibing entirely too freely for some time past, and it grew so rapidly upon him that two of his friends placed him on the train and accompanied him to the Institute.

On each of his former trips he has been reported cured, and for a time he seemed to be, but each time, after a short while, he took up his old habits and was worse than before. It is a misfortune that Mr. Bargo is so addicted. At the time he was taken away, he was serving as one of the Board of Supervisors of the county, and a vacancy was created by his absence. It is to be earnestly hoped that he will be fully recovered this time when he returns home. ROXYE.
